How will we deal with your complaint?

When you make a complaint to Kogan Energy, we will respond within two business days to confirm receipt of your complaint. At this stage, your complaint will be logged in Kogan Energy's customer management system and you will be assigned a complaint case manager to oversee the process.

Within five business days of receipt of your complaint we will contact you by either email or phone to discuss your issue. We aim to resolve your complaint within this first contact, but we acknowledge that some complaints cannot be resolved straightaway. If we require further time to investigate, then your complaint case manager will be in touch regularly to provide an update. You are welcome to contact your complaint case manager at any time to inquire if there is an update. We may require further information from you in order to investigate your complaint. Where we request further information, we ask that this is provided in a timely manner. If you fail to respond, we may need to close your complaint if we cannot investigate further.

We aim to provide a fair and reasonable resolution to all complaints within 20 business days of receipt. If you are not satisfied with the resolution that we offer, you are welcome to request that your complaint be escalated to a higher level within the organisation. This higher level representative will review your complaint and be in touch with you within 5 business days of any such request.

Customer Read Estimate Review

If Kogan Energy has issued an estimated bill, you may be able to request an adjusted bill based on a customer read estimate that you supply to us.

We will notify you in writing if your customer read estimate hasn't been accepted and the reasons for this. If this customer read estimate is not accepted by Kogan Energy, you can contact us if you think you might be able to rectify the reasons for this decision.

If you remain dissatisfied, you can request a bill review in line with Rule 29 of the National Energy Retail Rules or the Energy Retail Code, or lodge a dispute with your local Energy and Water Ombudsman.

Bill Review

If you believe that your bill is incorrect, we will review it for you in accordance with our obligations under the relevant laws. In doing so, we will confirm that the metering data used to calculate your bill is correct and ensure that the rates applied to your bill are correct.

If you request a bill review, we will only request payment for the undisputed amount of your account and place the disputed amount on hold until we reach a resolution. As part of a bill review, you are able to request for your meter to be tested for faults and Kogan Energy will notify you of this result. If your meter is not faulty, the cost of the meter test will be added to your next bill and the meter data used to calculate your bill will be deemed as correct. If your meter is faulty, you will not be charged for the meter test and we will continue the investigation of your complaint.

Complaints Involving Multiple Parties

Where a complaint involves multiple organisations, we will work with other organisations where possible, to ensure that communication with you is clear and coordinated.

In some cases, your complaint might not relate to Kogan Energy’s services but rather relate to a Third Party. This could be your distribution network, a metering company or a third party working on behalf of Kogan Energy. In these circumstances, we will either provide you with the relevant contact details for the Third Party or lodge a complaint with them directly on your behalf.

Still dissatisfied?

Kogan Energy is provided to you by Powershop Australia Pty Ltd, who is a member of the Energy and Water Ombudsman schemes for each state we retail in. You can contact the Energy and Water Ombudsman in your state at any time for independent advice and assistance. You can find the details of the Energy and Water Ombudsman in your state below.
